Dear Member,

The month of July 2017 witnessed the Nifty 50 cross the historical five-digit figure of 10,000. The NIFTY 50 index is the National Stock Exchange of India's benchmark index for the Indian equity market. The market pundits attributed this to a slew of reasons including optimism on earnings, swelling forex reserves of the country, increased infusion of funds by DII and Mutual Funds, expectations on falling interest rates, excess liquidity in the financial markets and overall improvement in the sentiments of investors.

Is this crossing of the magical figure of 10K and the bull market here to stay OR is it just another bubble about to burst? Should we stay invested or commit more funds at this stage OR book profits and exit to re-enter again after a correction? – are the burning questions amongst all categories of investors. While one view is that this is just the beginning of a longer term bull-run, there is also another opinion that the market is too heated up which will soon witness a meaningful correction.

To decode the implications of the trajectory that the index appears to be coursing on now and to help us understand its effect on the economy, growth story, the “New India”, IPO’s etc. BCAS have arranged an Experts Chat with the pundits themselves CA Vijai Mantri, Co-Promoter and Chief Mentor at Buckfast Financial Advisory Services Private Limited and CA Deven Choksey, Managing Director of KR Choksey Shares and Securities Pvt. Ltd in chat with CA Anil Singhvi, India - Markets Editor at CNBC TV18.
