General election of 2019 is a hot subject in media (social, electronics & print) beside private conversation. General Election of 2019 would shape growth trajectory for India not just for another 5 years but for time to come. Those following the outcome of the recently concluded assembly elections in 5 states cannot help feeling somewhat concerned, if not cautious, when it comes to projecting the BJP's prospects in the 2019 Lok Sabha polls. Were these state elections a "semi-final," showing how the country will vote in next year's "finals"? What are the likely scenarios for the 2019 elections?

How can we put Indians on an irreversible path of prosperity? How do we address our "hamesha problems" of poverty, unemployment, corruption, farms distress? Do we simply change rulers, or should we also need to relook at the rules? Constitution of India how it should be & why?
